U.S. Says Trade In February Set 2d Worst Deficit

WASHINGTON, March 28 (IHT) .- The United States posted its scond highest trade deficit in history last month—$597.6 million, he Commerce Department said the February figure was second only last. October's $821.4 million trade deficit. The importerport tals, the government said, "reflect the influence" of the second stallment of the West Coast dock strike, which lasted until Feb. 20. he welkcut began last July, was halted by court injunctions during trly October, then resumed in the third week in January February's deficit adds to the U.S. balance-of-payments troubles and puts

One effect of devaluation was the reduction of the book value of U.S. exports as expressed in dollars and an increase in the value of foreign imports, thus widening the import-export gap.

Shift Is Expected

Administration economists were prepared for a period of increased deficits after devaluation. They are convinced, however, that in the long run, imports will be reduced by higher prices in the United States and exports in-creased as a result of their lower prices abroad and greater competitiveness in world markets.

The deficit for January and February together totaled a staggering $916.4 million, oo a seasonally adjusted basis. This starts the 1972 trade bookkeeping year on a distinctly sour note.

In Proposal at Geneva Talks

Russia Urges Chemical Arms Ban

By Victor Lusinchi GENEVA, Merch 28 (NYT) .-The Soviet Union called today on all nations to undertake "never in any circumstances to develop. produce, stockpile or otherwise acquire or retain" means of chemical warfare.

Moscow wrote the pledge into draft of a 14-article convention that it presented to the 25-pation disarmament conference in the hope, Soviet delegate Aleksei A. Roshchin said, of starting "husinesslike and concrete nego tiations."

The proposed convention is virtually identical with the one banning biological weapons that was approved by the United Nations General Assembly in Decemher after a draft had been worked out at the conference here.

The treaty on biological weapons contains a specific pledge to "continue negotiations in good faith" on a chemical-arms accord. The United States, Britain and Russia will open for international on the inspection issue that has long marked disarmament negotiations, many conference sources are skeptical of early progress on chemical-weapon ban. Last week the United States submitted to the conference a "working paper" outlining the problems of insuring compliance with a chemical-weapon ban and suggesting a program for exploring possible solutions. After today's meeting of the 10-year-old conference, Joseph A. Martin jr., leader of the United States delegation, stressed in comments to reporters the need for the conference to explore in "depth" the issues involved in an attempt to get an accord to outlaw chemical arms.

Washington's proposal for such an examination is "more likely to lead to positive results" than would an attempt to start drafting a treaty at this time. Mr. Martin said.

Rally by 50,000, Strikes Continue Ulster's Protests

By Bernard Weinraub

BELFAST, March 28 (NYT) .- The Northern Ireland Parliament, a symbol of Protestant dominance for 51 years, was suspended today while 50,000 flag-waving demonstrators surged angelly outside in a protest rally.

Once again, the six counties of Northern Ireland were crippled hy a general strike of Protestant workers, protesting Britain's takeover of the province. Factories, dockyards and stores were closed. Electricity supplies were curtailed, and air, train and bus services were halted. The two-day strike ends at midnight tonight. Outside Stormont Parliament, in Belfast's suburbs, tens of thousands of Protestants held the rally to hear denunciations of British Prime Minister Edward Heath for his suspension of the provincial government. Mr. Heath appointed William Whitelaw, leader of the House of Commons. as secretary of state for Northern Ireland, to take over all powers previously held by the cabinet and Parliamen...

"We feel our endeavors to proride a just government for Ulster have been hetrayed from London." provincial Prime Minister Brian Faulkner told the rain-soaked crowd in a surprise appearance on a balcony of the Parliament building. Stormont Castle. "We share the resentment you feel and we understand the bewilderment of the people in Ulster."

What many Protestants fear is that the British take-over of Northern Irelaud is a first step toward the unification of Ulster with the Irisb Republic to the south, where 95 percent of the population is Catholic. The Prot-estants feel that Britain will eventually turn weary of the Northern Ireland problem and negotiate to unity the Norto and South.

Mr. Faulkner, who announced his resignation lest Friday, is expected to leave office later in the weck when the Westminster Parllament approves emergency leg-islation authorizing direct rule and suspending the Stormont Parliament for a year. Today, the Parliament was adjourned for the year but there was little doubt that the firmly controlled powers of Ulster's Protestants had been permanently shaken,

Mr. Faulkner spoke sadly and in a voice close to cracking. "The government of Ulster is about to pass, temporarily at least, into other hands," said the whitehaired, 51-year-old prime minister. "We stood firm and we stood together. We did what we believed to be right.

"We have taken our stand, We helieve our record over the last few days and as a whole should he judged by the country and by posterity.

He concluded with a prayer. "I want to express the wish that we will see peace in our native land," he said softly. "Please

God."

As he spoke, the 50,000 Protestants swarmed outside the Parliament for the rally called by Ulster Vanguard, the militant Protestant group led by William Craig, a rightist former cabinet minister. Vanguard officials estimated that the crowd was closer to 100,000.

The crowd sang "The Sash My Father Wore." gripped placards reading "Betrayal" and "Outlaw Whitelaw" and waved a white (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

London Urges Northern Irish To Cooperate

By Alvin Shuster

LONDON, March 28 (NET) .-The Erlish government today urged Protestants demonstraturg in Northern Ireland against London's take-over of the province to "settle down" and help ease the simmering orisis.

The bill received a second reading-approval in principle-by a vote of 483 to 18. The outcome was never in doubt because the opposition Labor party had given the hill its full support. The remaining legislative steps will be completed by Thursday, when the bill will become law.

As expected, members representing Ulster's Unionist party. which has dominated politics there for more than 50 years, opposed the bill. They argued that it represented a surrender to Catholic terrorism and a betrayal by London.

Amendment Promise Moving to assuage Protestant fears, government spokesmen agreed to submit later an amendment that would make it clear that nothing in the bill threatens Northern Ireland's status as part of the United Kingdom.

In his first speech to the House since he was appointed Ulster's administrator last Fricay. Mr. Whitelaw said that he could understand the sentiments of the Protestants in calling a two-day strike, But now it is time, he said, for the Protesiants "to settle down and indeed seek, with all concerned, to find a new solution." The 53-year-old former leader of the House, who went to Belfast last Saturday for meetings, was clearly concerned over recent statements by Protestant spokes-(Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

But the Argentine government has barred the company-or anyone else—from meeting the demands of "any extortionist."

Company in Rescue Try Nevertheless company officials sent a top Fiat official to tha company plant in Cordoba, Argentina, apparently to regotiata the possible return of dismissed workers—which is one of the ERP's conditions, However, reports that former Argentine President Arturo Illia had secretly visited Fiat-Argentina headquarters here in the middle of the night—to try to mediate between the company and the terrorists-were denied by a spokesman.

Mr. Sallustro originally was slated to be executed at noon Sunday, The deadline then was changed to last midnight. Another 24-hour delay was granted early today by the ERP -to give the auto company a final and 'definite period' to meet ransom demands. In a message left in a bar for pickup by a TV station employee —the sixth ERP communiqua since the abduction—the kid-nappers said they would "commute" Mr. Saliustro's death sentence if fiva demands were met. Mr. Faulkner told the crowd that Protestants should not cooperate with a commission representing all shades of opinion that will be set up to advise Mr. Whitelaw on running Northern Ireland. "We will refuse cooperation with any undemocratic commission," said Mr. Faulkner, Moments later, Mr. Craig. a former political enemy of Mr. Faulkner, stepped to the balcony to prolonged applause. "We and our political friends have bad different attitudes," he said. The next steps for the Protestant militants seem hazy. A civil disobedience campaign will probably be announced within days, but there is now a feeling of uncertainty about Mr. Whitelaw and bow, in fact, Ulster will chance under direct rule. Mr. Whitelaw is known to have assured Protestants from Northern Ireland in the Westminster Parliament that they would be consulted on steps to be taken in the province.

299,000 Off the Job Across Northern Ireland today, about 200,000 of the province's 470.000 workers failed to show up at their jobs. Their absence shut down virtually all industry. Royal Avenue, the main street of Belfast, resembled a sleepy Sunday morning-with shops closed and only a handful of cars. In cities such as Londonderry, with a Catbolic majority, the electricity cuts were the main cause of store and factory shutdowns. In Belfast, telephone service was disrupted, many schools were closed, bread and milk supplies were curtailed and there was no postal service. "We bave successfully brought this province to a standstill," sald Thomas Creighton, a businessman who serves as spokesman for Ulster Vanguard. "We have shown the world that the Westminster government has performed an undemocratic act on the majority population of North-ern Ireland. In Rhodesia, Westminster has clamored for majority rule. Here they're clamoring for minority rule. They've yielded to the terrorists."

Violence was sporadic in Ulster todsy. In Limavady, a town between Londonderry and Coleraine, two men were killed while driving past a van that exploded beside a police station. In Portadown, 20 miles southwest of here, streets were barricaded and store windows smashed following a night in which British troops clashed with Protestant militants

Meany Gives Slap to Price ommission

By James L. Rowe jr.

WASHINGTON, March 28 WP) -AFL-CIO president Geora Meany today told the Price ommission that the administraon's controls on wages and prices re "neither fair nor firm," workng to the advantage of business od hurting workers.

In the first of two days of ommission hearings to assess the ffectiveness of its price-control olicies, Mr. Meany said that he as not necessarily criticizing the rice Commission, but rather the ixon administration.

"You can't do it [control prices] ntil you get the tools," the labor ader testified.

"Price controls, such as they re, are assigned to a small force f some 3,000 Internal Revenue tervice agents who find it virtually mpossible to understand and in-erpret complex, confusing and hanging Price Commission guideines, rules and regulations—let done enforce them. It is no ronder, then, that this has resultd in few investigations, even lever prosecutions and hardly any indictments of violations."

Credibility Gap

Mr. Meany, who last week walked off the Price Commission's companion Pay Board along with three of its four other labor memers, said the Price Commission's credibility gap is showing."

: - He pointed to rapidly rising onsumer prices and wholesale orices last month but sald averice weekly earnings "were the res nundred percent of a work T's paycheck is controlled, but "I percent of the consumer price adex-what a worker's paycheck -nest buy-is not controlled."

Mr. Meany also criticized Price

Mr. Meany was followed on the platform by W.P. Gullander, resident of the National Assoiation of Manufacturers, who aid Mr. Meany's complaint that vages were out of tune with ising prices "sounded like George

Mr. Gullander said wages rose 3 percent in six years, from 294 billion to $642 hillion, while uter-tan profits of husiness rose miy 2 percent in the same eriod, from $46.5 billion to 47.4 billion.

"In the light of that record it rould appear ludicrous to mainain that the primary problem is 0 restrain the pricing practices if business lest they earn undne Profits," Mr. Gullander said. Clearly, the focus of the probem is the increase in employee

Despite strong "must work" provisions in the House bill, the Senate Finance Committee has indicated that it would not approve the guaranteed income concept Instead, the committee is expected to report out a fill cracking down on what it terms "welfare chiselers" while provid-ing strong financial incentives for persons willing to work. However, the committee has not yet acted on the welfare portions of the bill, despite earlier asser-tions by committee leaders that work on the entire measure would be completed by March 1.

In his 3,000-word message to Congress yesterday President Nixon declared that the worsening welfare situation has become "a social and political time bomb" requiring prompt enactment of his reform proposals.

Sen Russell Long of Louisiana. chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, predicted that the committee would have a bill ready for Senate floor action "sometime in April."

Rise in Benefits

In his message yesterday, Mr. Nixon made only brief mention of the fact that the pending welfare bill also includes changes in Social Security benefits, along with Medicare and Medicaid.

The President has recommended a 5 percent across-the-board increase in Social Security bene-fits, the same level voted last year by the House. Since then, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, cheirman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Commit-tee, has proposed a 20 percent benefit increase.

Sen. Long predicted today that his committee would provide an across-the-board henefit increase "in excess of 5 percent." Sources within the committee indicated that the figure was likely to he about 10 percent-

The committee's action yesterday in sharply increasing bene-fits for steady but low-paid workers noon their retirement is designed to give them sufficiently large pensions so they would not have to rely, in part, on supple-mental public welfare payments. Under the present law, the minimum Social Security benefit is $70.40 a month whose average annual earnings over a period of at least 16 years amounted to $923 or less. An estimated 1.2 million low-income retirees now draw supplemental welfare payments.

340,000 Persons Affected

The committée-approved provision would provide benefits of $200 for those who retire after 30 years of work 1$300 for a couple). Lesser amounts, ranging from $190 to $80 a month, would go to those who have worked more than 17 years but less than The provision would apply to about. 340,000 persons immediately at an initial cost of $110 million. Within 10 years, the committee estimated, the additional cost would be about $1.5 billion annually. These benefit levels would be far in excess of what low-income workers retiring under the present law would receive on the basis of wages earned. A 30-year low-income worker would, in fact, receive almost as much as one who had made maximum Social Security contribution during his working life.

For instance, under present law, a worker who retired tomorrow, after having paid the maxinnum contributory amount his entire working life would receive $216.10 a month, Even with a 10 percent across-the-board benefit increase, the maximum contributor would receive $237.71-just $37,71 more than the minimum 30-year contributor nnder the Senate committee's plan.

Thus began the process-a classic example of marshaling press, legislators, volunteers and celebrities of elevating the "Soledad Brothers" as they were now dubbed-to a national poiltical cause celebre.

At first, it was slow going. But the task was eased by the fortunate circumstance that Jackson, like Eldridge Cleaver, was a prodigious writer of letters and essays whose angry rhetoric often achieved heights of eloquence.

A book and paperback were swiftly contracted for—with an introduction by French play-wright Jean Genet—and the Soledad Brothers cause was on

About that time, philesophy professor Angela Davis was involved in a struggle the University of California from dismissing her for her Communist connections. But, around the spring of 1970, her interest shifted from her own case to that of the Soledad Brothers.

Early that spring, she was seen at a city hall rally with Jonathan Jackson. In a newspaper interview around the same time, she stressed that her noiversity case was only a small segment of the larger struggle to free all political prisoners. like Huey Newton and the Soledad Brothers.

Later, the state would attempt to link Miss Davis, Jonathan Jackson and George Jackson in the plot that led to the Marin County shoot-out of Aug. 7, 1970.

Jolied the Nation

If the Soledad Brother book had not succeeded in . making Soledad a household word, the sanguinary San Marin incident folted the nation to attention. Four persons died in Jonathan Jackson's abortive raid on the courthouse during the trial of San Quentin inmate John McClain, As the escapees sought to flee with their hostages, one of them shouted. "Free the Soledad Brothers by 12 o'clock." They never made it beyond the courthouse grounds, but it seem ed clear that the attempt was designed to ransom Jonathan's Brother, George, and his fellow defendants.

Commenting days later on his hrother's death, George Jackson called him a "brave revolutionary," and told reporters he would weep for his brother when he the spring-meaning the fruition of the revolution-adding: "I probably will not live to see it."

Convulsion of Vislence

A year later, Jackson was dead, still another convulsion of violence. Within a short time came Attica, and a chain of other prison rebellions.

Under the spotlight, prisons have become more accessible to lawyers and reporters and some reforms are being instituted. The trend may peak and die. as many prisoo reform efforts bave in the past. But Mrs. Stender and others remember the beginning of their efforts, two years ago, when nobody was listening and it looked as if the Soledad Brothers might never get a fair trial Obviously, a lot has changed since then.

By Morton Mintz

WASHINGTON, March 28 (WP).—Sen. Edmund Muskie, D., Maine, has made public the names of 13,982 persons who contributed $2,027,840 to his presidential campaign in the 15-month period that ended last Jan. 31.

The largest single contribution, $50,000, was made by Joseph C. Wilson, board chairman of the Xerox Corp. He died last year.

The second-largest contributor was Arnold M. Picker, chairman of the executive committee of United Artists Corp. and a principal fundraiser for Sen. Muskie. Mr. Picker was listed yesterday for $39,893, but be and his wife had heen recorded for $10,000 more in a filing for the period covering Feb. 13-Oct. 30, 1970, by committee that financed Sen. Muskie's Senate re-election effort of that year as well as his budding presidential bld. In addition, their daughters and sonsin-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ned Frank and Laurance S. Dessner, gave $4.000, for a family total of $53.893.

The lists also disclose significant sums given by others in United Artists and elsewhere in the motion-picture industry, former members of the executive branch and regulatory agencies in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, and hankers and other members of the financial community.

Other Candidates

Sen. Muskie is the fourth principal Democratic contender to make such a voluntary disclosure. President Nixon's campaign organization, the Committee to Re-Elect the President, has made no disclosures. It has said it will do all that is required under the new election law, which covers receipts and expenditures made on and after April 7.

The contributors formerly in government include Clark Clifford, who was secretary of defense, $10,000; his law partner, Paul C. Warnnke, who was assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs, $500; Milton P. Semer, former general counsel of the Department of Housing and Urhan Development, $1,000; C. Dougias Dillon, former secretary of the Treasury, and Townsend W. Hoopes, former under secretary of the Air Porce, $5,000.

Also, John H. Crooker, former chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, $6,000: Newton Minow. former chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, $2,500; William H. Orrick, former head of the Justice Department's Anti-Trust Division, $1,700; Raymond Lapin, former president of the Federal National Mortgage Association, $1,000, and Naiceb Halaby, former head of the Federal Aviation Administration, $350.

Other Muskie donors of note included, from the news media, Barry Bingham, board chairman of the Louisville Courier-Journal, $2,000, and Alfred Friendly, retired foreign correspondent and man-aging editor of The Washington Post, $1,000.

McCarthy's Picoe

Meanwhile, in what might be termed the politics of pique, former Minnesota Senator Eugene J. McCarthy endorsed the candidacy of two fellow contenders in Wisconsin's April 4 primary. All Deliberate Speed tional Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has taken a stand on American investments in South Africa that will not be popular with a number of Americans, black and white. He has pointed out that If American firms pulled out of South Africa. hlacks there woold be worse off than before. The American companies, Mr. Wlikins urges, can, while operating within South African apartheld law, still improve the lot of their black workers, with respect to job advancement and pay.

This attitude is not favored by the more impetuous whites or blacks because it is essentially reformist, not revolutiouary, because it recognizes that the notion of advancing with "all deliberate speed" involves at least as much deliberation as speed. Many organizations in the United States have protested any American investment in South Africa because such economic involvement benefits, in the first place, the white-controlled economy there, and the profits accruing to Americans are thus extracted from an exploitative situation

This, incidentally, is much the same argument that is made against American investments in many parts of the world. It is behind nationalization programs in, for example, Latin America. The counter-argument, which is basically the one advanced by Mr. Wlikins, that American capital and know-how can create jobs that did not exist before, and pay for them at higher rates than local efforts can or do provide, is often

Yet, as in South Africa, it is usually a fact that in under-developed countries the foreign enterprises are the most su-cessful, in terms of working conditions, pay scales and adaptation to the economic needs of the country. Cuba's efforts to build up industries, Bollvia's experience with nationalized copper mines, and many other cases could be cited to demonstrate that too much has's in taking over alien industrial complexes or attempting to set up such complexes under purely domestic control can be disastrous.

It can be argued that South African apartheld is sui generis, an open affront to human dignity. Yet exploitation by class or race is by no means confined to South Africa or its Rhodeslan neighbor. In fact, It is far from eliminated in the United States and finds analogues in many Communist or avowedly anti-imperialist countries.

The problem, in essence, is not one of ldeology or social theory. Pragmatically, it Is one of finding a way to make an economy work with the greatest possible advantage to the peoples concerned, and for this, much more than ideological purity, whether that of Karl Marx. Adam Smith or Franz Fanon, Is required. . Moreover, however fast expectations may rise, realization takes time. Peaceful ccexistence, with a good deal of borrowing from what is good in the world's various systems, is the best answer, even if it defles the logic of schools and the enthusiasms of the committed.

NATO's Weak Anchor

President Nixon's promise of additional military ald to visiting Turkish Premier Nihat Erim is reasonable in light of the Soviet military build-up in the Eastern Mediterranean. Yet American help in modernizing Turkey's forces will not help solve the grave political, social and economic problems which represent an even more urgent threat to the security of the nation that is NATO's eastern anchor. More American arms for Turkey will not help solve and could even aggravate the problem that currently poses the most immediate threat to peace in the area—the deteriorating situation on Cyprus.

That island, where Archbishop Makarios is clinging to power in the face of heavy pressures from Athens, must have been a priority topic in last week's Washington talks between U.S. and Turkish leaders. Unless the Cypriot quarrel can be resolved to the satisfaction of Ankara, Athens and Nicosla, American military ald to Turkey and Greece could wind up fueling a fight between allies that would undermine NATO and endanger world peace.

In his talks with American officials, the Turkish premier reported;y emphasized his country's need for social reform and economic development. Discontent, rooted in social and economic injustice, provoked the army intervention last spring that brought the Erim regime to power. Promised reforms have been slow in coming and there has been growing agitation against persisting martial law. Even more than arms aid. Turkey needs U.S. moral and material support for reforms essential to restore the country's democratic stability.

Moscow-Peking Dialogue

In his March 20 Moscow speech, Mr. Brezhnev said Russia had made "concrete and constructive propositions" to Peking concerning non-resort to force and the settlement of frontier problems. But he simultaneously expressed anxiety about the "secret content" of President Nixon's conversations with the Chinese leaders.

Mr. Brezhnev, for one, appears in a hurry to arrive at least at a semblance of rapprochement with Peking in order to be in a better position when he receives Mr. Nixon on May 22.

President Pompidon has, after all, succeeded in the most obvious short-term alm of his referendum: The splitting of the leftwing opposition in France. The Communists have announced their decision to campaign for a "no vote" on April 23, while the Socialists are advocating a "motivated abstention." This division is in many ways surprising. The trap set for the left seemed sn glaringly obvious, and was so vociferously denounced by both the left-wing parties, that it really seemed possible they would avoid falling into lt.

London and the Ulster Crisis

London will not be able to govern Ulster as it does Scot and and Wales. If comparisons must be made, there are rather some parallels with Palestine and Rhodesla. The hodies which have been named to supplant the suspended government of Northern Ireland are faced by a very thorny task. In all probability, after a certain waiting period they will come under pressure from the Protestant extremists and the IRA, both of whom are averse to a viable compromise. For its experiment in Catholic-Protestant equality in Ulster, the Heath government can count on the support of Wilson's Labor party and some understanding from the Lynch government in Dublin; It is also placing some hope on the moderates of both camps in Northern Ireland, who are to he pacified through elimination of preventive arrest and a later plebiscite on the question of reunification. But in any event it will be uncommonly difficult to bridge the chasm of the specifically Irish religious and ethnic war which today cuts straight across Uister.

-From the Neue Zuercher Zeitung (Zurich). U.S. Economic 'Imperialism'

In a television debate, Mr. Jean Lecanuet [a centrist political leader and mayor of Ronen] asserted in substance, if we understood we'll: not to create Europe is to surrender the majority of French firms to American control. This viewpoint is fairly widespread; It is an easy theme for propaganda against our government and against "American Imperialism." But it is faise The U.S. Ambassador [Arthur K. Watson] has just confirmed this and thus belied Mr. Lecanuet ... The U.S. Ambassador confirmed that Amerlcan firms in France employed in 1970 4 percent of the industrial labor force, made a 10 percent contribution to French exports, paid 9 percent of the taxes from non-farm enterprises. He thus rightly believed that such modest figures do not justify more severe control of American subsidiaries in France that would result in boosting the position of the protectionists in the United States Congress. The real bones of contention. In the opinion of the ambassador, are the EEC farm policy, the preferential agreements with third countries, the refosal to let Japanese goods enter Europe more freely. On these three points, don't American subsidiaries in France have common interests to defend with our national enterprises? -From Le Nouveau Journal (Paris).

'Tight Belt'

In the financial field Waldheim has instituted reforms designed to save $6 million by a "light belt" policy. He has ordered a freeze on recruitment and banned overlapping work in a bureaucracy necessarily swollen because of every region's desire to be

When Waldheim first came here in 1955 as Austria's "observer" (It wasn't yet in the UN) there were only 56 members.

Yet, be feels, after 27 years any institution has to renew itself. Modern administrative techniques, already employed by industry, can be applied here to improve efficiency.

There is a dual question of the UN's abort-term and long-term indebtedness. The first comes from the organization's need for enough money at the start of each budget year (commencing Jan. 1) to pay regular expenses, including salaries.

Customarily there is a shortage. Many members have been dilatory in forking up but Waldbeim has issued a special appeal for promptness. He hopes the vital U.S. assessment-payable at the start of our own fiscal year, July 1-will henceforth come in a single installment instead of two or three.

The long-term financial problem is more difficult because it is political. Much of the $65 to $70 million UN debt (plus $120 million in bonds bought by members after the Congo and Middle East crises) stems from the fact that countries like the Soviet Union and France refuse to pay special assessments for operations of which they disapprove.

Walcheim has formed a committee from the Secretariat and 15 nations to devise a "voluntary" settlement of this issus because no settlement can be imposed. Hs hopes to present an acceptable plan to the next General Assembly.

general realizes that no matter how successful he may be in streamlining a cumbersome apparatus, the political problem remains. The UN is incapable of forcing members to do things unpalatable to their national interests. No charter revision could alter this; indeed you might get a worse charter today than in 1945.

However, Waldheim does stress that the positive accomplishments of the UN are often forgotten: Like the Antarctic, seabed and moon treatles, Korean cease-fire and the Congo and Cyprus peacekeeping. Moreover, the secretary-general himself plays a useful personal

He can apply quiet preventive diplomacy, using his moral anthority behind the scenes to ease gathering tension. He can send special representatives as personal ambassadors to troubled areas like Cyprus and Bangladesh. And, in evident emergencies, he can convene the Security Council himself (under Article 99 of the charter).

That last recourse is difficult. The secretary-general must be confident it is both justified and useful. It has been dooe only ooce—by Hammarskjold during the Congo crisis. A negative response to such a request cannot be risked except in grave emer-

Nevertheless, Waldheim is aware that he has the legal power to summon the doctor if his patient, the world, is critically ill. In the meantime he concentrates on the eminently practicable job of tidying up the UN so it can achieva maximum efficiency on routine matters.

Nixon and the Conservatives

By William F. Buckley Jr.

NEW YORK.-Further on the subject of conservative dissatisfaction with the administration of President Nixon:

 Congressman John Ashbrook, who is the symbol of that dissatisfaction, did not do very well in New Hampshire and Florida, nor did he do ignominiously. He entered the races late, spent a very small handful of dollars, suffered from being relatively unknown, and got more votes than John Lindsay. His strengths have been his sincerity, intelligence decency, and doggedness. He pledged very early in the game not to go on and run as an independent after Mr. Nixon is renominated.

John Ashbrook will not himself be able to keep Mr. Nixon from getting the support of all the men and women who now and in the weeks ahead vote for Ashbrook, Most of them will almost certainly go on to vote for Nixon, however grudgingly. But there are those who are quite definitely toying with the idea of sitting this election out. A considerable following of the Conservative party of New York, for instance, are at this point medium-well disappointed, and it would not take much of the sams kind of thing Mr. Nixon has been doing to bring their resentment to a boil, at which point significant numbers of them will either sit it out, vote for George Wallace in protest, or return, embittered, to the Democratic party from which they took exploratory refuge in the election of 1970.

Probably Mr. Nixon will not fight very hard for New York. But if he wants New York, he will almost certainly have to have Nixon has in recent months the backing of the Conservative party. At this particular moment, that backing would not be forthcoming. Whether by next September the Democratic candidates have succeeded in scaring the conservatives half to death or whether by next September Mr. Nixon has succeeded in woolng them back one cannot say, at this point. There are too any variables. For instance, the behavior of the Soviet Union and Mr. Nixon's response to it. For east Asia. • California Mr. Nixon has got to have, period. And nothing frightens Mr. Nixon's campaign managers more than the prospect of a deep division in California among conservative-minded voters. The reason for this is lapidary: Mr. Nixon will not forget, ever, his terrible miscalculation of 1962. It was then that the followers of Joe Shell, or at least a great many of them, decided to sit out, and the result was the stunning defeat which all but vaporized Richard Nixon. What scems to be distinctive about California, a highly ideologized state is that the people, when they get mad, tend to stay mad.

Now John Ashbrook is entered in California, and the Nixon people will be watching ever so carefully to see what kind of progress be makes-watching to see whether he succeeds in igniting the separatist frenzies which cannot be doused between the primary in June and the election in November. This of course is the principal reason why Mr. maintained so close and cooperative a relationship with Ronald Reagan.

Mr. Reagan, though deeply disturbed by international events such as the expulsion of Taiwan, is preoccupied with the sovereignty of his state, and the careful and galvanizing experiments he wants to make in the field of welfare. He knows what would happen if the Democratic party took power: California would become a great welfars reservation, property of Health, Edoca-tion and Welfare. He is therefore standing fast with Nixon, and although he is a friend and ad-mirer of John Ashbrook, he will not, for the obvious reasons, make any public appearances with him—quite the contrary, he will almost certainly campaign for Mr. Nixon. But in doing so hs will find, for the first time in his public life, division in conservative ranks.

conservative leaders and backers, from out of state, will have to declare themselves on the Ashbrook/California problem. It isn't as though they are in a position to manipulate Californians by the bundreds of thousands. But their support, or lack: of it, of the Ashbrook candidacy would make the difference between igniting that campaign, and containing it within the ideological ghettoes. It isn't to exaggerate it in the least to say that their attitude toward Ash brook, barring landslides (and at this moment one can conceive of both an anti-Nixon and a pro-Nixon landslide), can mean ths re-election of Mr. Nizon or his

In Election District 71, the semirural, semi-industrial region along the Vistala River west of Warsew, of which Plock is the main town, the results produced no surprises. The five approved candidates of the National Unity Front on the sever-name ballot were elected with around 97.5 percent of the votes cast.

Was the exercise a senseless ritual, without significance? Or a usual exercise in political acwithout the abrasive of parliamentary democclashes racies?

Did the lopsided totals of the candidates indicats approval? Or indifference and resignation?

No Reforms

In almost all the Communist countries of Eastern Europe, some thought is being given to those questions. However, electoral reform in the Soviet bloc, as the recent Polish elections indicated, is far from realization.

In 1968, plans for making the Federal Assembly of Czechoslovakia into a truly representative legislative body, with elections equally open to Communist and nonparty candidates, were snuffed out by the Soviet invasion before they could be tested. Hungary and Yugoslavia have introduced cantious reforms that make possible some direct contests. Both countries have democratized the process of nominating candidates, which elsewhere is a job for backroom bargaining.

Some Marxists in Eastern Europe have suggested setting up two Communist parties, to represent conflicting strains of opinion within the ruling organization and provide the machinery for successorship and rejuvena-

However, such changes hold evident perils for reformers at this particular moment in East

European development. The reason is that the management-strengthening reforms of the economic system now being undertaken throughout the area have not been overly popular with workers. In tha 1969 federal assembly elections in Yugoslavia, for example, orthodox "outs" used open-nominating procedures and fair elections to unseat several party-backed advocates of re-

Aware of Hazards

The Polish election aftermath indicates that the ruling Central Committee in Warsaw was well aware of the potential hazards of a more free-wheeling election process. Though strong pressures appear to have been exerted in some parts of the country to field a strong, independent local slate, the central authorities appear to have kept a fairly tight control over the nominating process.

Of the five slate candidates in Election District 71, for instance, two were designated by Warsaw, where both hold positions. The other candidates were approved by the Central National Unity Front during bargaining with local officials.

According to Plock officials involved with the election, only four names were changed during the course of bargaining over the slate in the entire Warsaw provincial area.

For this reason, not too much can be read into election results. In District 71, as elsewhere, all mandates counted for the five National Unity Front candidates unless their names were specifically scratched off.

But the marginal permissible selectivity did indicate general trends. In District 71, for instance, a postmortem political analysis highlights these facts:

There were around 7,000 "against" ballots or scratch-offs cast out of just over 250,000. This was roughly the number of votes credited to Mrs. Alicja Kwistkowski, who stood sixth on the ballots given to voters.

• The only holdover candidate for deputy from the previous parliament, who was also 2 worker and a Communist party member received the lowest number of votes of the approved slate.

• The largest number of votes went to a farmer (presumably Catholic), who is a member of the United Peasant party, which is allotted 117 seats in the Seim. The UPP is a pale image of the powerful prewar Polish Agrarian party. Yet it has helped to secure a better lot for farmers in Poland than anywhere else in the Soviet bloc. The second largest number of votes also went to a tion, the Democratic party, may up of watchmakers, crafting and other private artisans.

• Most significantly, the Wa saw-designated No. 1 name on a list, that of Politburo mem-Jozef Tejchma, dropped to the place. Tejchma, considered to liberal and popular periodic with younger Poles, apparen suffered from a trend across country by voters to deliver mild admonition to the per leadership to heed the dist sound of public Opinion

There are also complaints of water pollution from the sugar factory upstream on the Vistula, and demands for a rec railroad bridge to replace the present single-track structure. These were the issues raised of more than a dozen voter mee ings during the election car

Charges Political Jackassery'

Scott Assails Probe of Kleindienst

By Robert Siner

WASHINGTON, March 28 (IHT).—Senate minority leader Hugh Scott, after meeting with President Nixon, charged today that the Senate inquiry into the fitness of Richard G. Kleindienst to be attoriey general in light of the settlement of a billiondollar anti-trust spit was "a frantic exercise in irrelevancy."

The Penisylvania Republican, speaking to newsmen at the White House inllowing the breakfast meeting with Mr. Nixon, accused Senate Judeiary Committee Democrats who are pursuing the investigation of some form of political jacknessery." Sen. Scott restated his intention to move for a speedy end to the hearings when the Senate returns from its Easter recess.

The investigation has been in progress since columnist Jack Anderson charged a month ago that the settlement of an antithat the settlement of an anti-trust sitt against the Interna-tional Telephone & Telegraph Corp. was linked to a $400,000 pledge ly an ITT subsidiary to help defay the costs of the 1972 Republican National Convention. Mr. Ancerson also accused Mr. Kleindiess and other top admin-istration officials of being in-volved it the deal.

Three days before the columnist sirel his charges, the Judiciary Committee had unanimously approved President Nixon's choica of Mr. Kleindienst for the post. The hearings were subsequently reopened at Mr. Kleindienst' request so he could answer the accusations.

O'Brien Accused

Tody, however, Sen. Scott charge that the entire involvement of the Kleindienst confirmaion proceedings with the ITT hvestigation was irrelevant, political, and masterminded by Demoratic national chairman Lawrince F. O'Brien.

Flanigan Had Role in ITT Case

On Anti-Trust to Businessmen

By Michael C. Jensen

-Peter M. Flanigan, the presidential assistant who played a controversial role in the settlement of an anti-trust case involving the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., dis-cussed the administration's antitr t posture last week at a private, off-the-record dinner meeting in New York of money managers and corporate and

No Major Progress Reported As SALT Round Is Resumed

The United States and the Soviet Union resumed their Strategic Arms Limitation Talks today in a serious and business!ikc atmosphere but there was no evidence of major progress towards an early agreement, diplomatic sources said.

Conference sources described the 90-minute meeting in the Soviet Embassy between U.S. chief negotiator Gerard C. Smith and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir S. Semenov as "serious and businesslike as usual."

The atmosphere of the seventh round of talks was described by the sources as "reasonably cordial" but there were no references to the recent, optimistic statements made by President Nixon and Leonid I. Brezhnev, the secretary-general of the Soviet Com-munist party.

Mr. Nixon and other administration officials have said there a good possibility to reach an agreement, covering the whole range of defensive missiles and certain offensive weapons sys tems, by the time the President goes to Moscow on May 22.

Smith Also Optimistic Mr. Smith echoed the same optimism when he arrived in Helsinki. But in the last few days diplomatic sources have been playing down these statements. At today's plenary meeting.

The Folies-Bergère Formula in a New Guise

By Thomas Quina Curtiss

DARIS, March 28 (IHT) -The Folies-Bergère, which has heeu going strong since it opened on May 1, 1869, has a "new" show. "Never change a hit" is a familiar theatrical adage. "Never change a hit formula" is the sagaclous policy of this famous music-hall on the Ruc

As tradition would have it, the new revue has a title composed of 13 lucky letters, "JAime a la Folie!" Michel Gyarmathy, long the guiding light of the Folles, has surpassed himself in creating magnificent tableaux. of entertainment is not one of the evening's more sprightly features and neither is the soured corn dispensed in the scene in which sleeping prisoners are visited by visions of naked damsels. Regular Folies patrons will not be surprised by the inclusion of these numbers, suspecting that they have been on the bill since 1869.

At one climactic point the theater is converted into a cathedral with stained-glass windows everywhere, an interiude reminiscent of an earlier Bergere number in which Joséphine Baker as Mary Queen of Scots sang "Ave Maria" on her way to the block. The costumes match the décor in sumptuous splendor. The ball gown of the Empress Catherine is alone worth the price of admission. The regal train covers the entire grand staircase, revealing on a field of sable the imperial eagle in gold. As an introduction to the inevitable can-can, there is a striking picture of Paris in 1900 with a horsedrawn omnibus crowded with beaux and belles, a period photograph come to life.

The lively, agile tumbling of Les Vassalo deserves mention as does the lighting throughout. In "J'Aime à la Folie," the celebrated standards of the Folias-Bergère have been preserved.

The current theatrical season could use a hright, boulevard comedy. In an attempt to meet the need, Jean-Jacques Bricaire, director of the Marigny, and Maurice Lasaygues wrote "Folie Douce" (at the Marigny). One respects their good intentions and regrets the result of their

Yours faithfully, H.R. MCALISTER,

Does the fact that this anticipatory question mark is upside down also seem ludicrous to him?

But should we not, in a spirit of fair play, give Mr. McAlister's point of view a tryout, and then assess the result? "Tennis, anyone." (Something is lacking, don't you think?) Shall we try another? ."Lend me 200 francs this way, improve your chances nation. What does that leave?

What, then, is Mr. McAlister's game? To start with, the very eddress of his letter is suspect. "Rain," a 1920s melodrama revived at the Astor Place Theater, left Clive Barnes of The New York Times with mixed feelings. 'Against every single one of my better judgments, I found myself enjoying it. It is an unusually awful play that time has over-taken and made not just funny hut also still strangely convincing. 'Rain' was a turning point in our theater's freedom of expression—as unlikely as that must seem now. This production is interesting and it is great fun -much of it unintentionallyaimply because it is scrupulously faithful to the original." The play was adapted by John Colton and Clemence Randolph from Somerset Maugham's short story about Sadie Thompson, the lady of easy virtue, and the missionary, Alfred Davidson. "A Bailet Behind the Bridge," presented by the Negro Ensemble Company at the St. Mark's Playhouse, got an unfavorable review from Timesman Clive Barnes: "All organizations devoted to the presentation of new plays are bound to have a variable track record." and this one is "no exception." The ensemble's latest offering, by Lennox Brown; a Trinidadian author now living in Canada, seems to be "well-meaning but muddled." Brown presents "a ritual largely between two contrasted brothers, but also between Trinidad's historic black and white ethnic strains, and that might be termed the racial forces of revolution and evolution." However, "most of the play is poorly written," and the view from Trinidad via Canada of white colonialism in the Caribbean is "unconvincing whenever it is not obvious." Douglas Turner Ward directed.

It said its profit also was adversely affected by currency realignments, which it said had. an impact on certain overseas operations and generally reduced the value of oversess profit on conversion into sterling.

RTZ said its profit from its lead and zinc operations fell by £1.8 million because of additional losses at its smelter at Avon-mouth England. It said the pre-tax profit of Hamersley Hold-ings, an Australian affiliate, improved by £2.8 million on higher firon ore deliveries compared with

Mr. Volcker also said he wants to see "wide institutional participation" to include a variety of "talents, expertise, points of view." He included among these the International Monetary Pund, the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development and the Bank for International Settlements: He added that "It would facilitate things" if the Common Market countries could talk with a "single" and "flex-ible" voice.

Who's Willing to Run Deficit? In outlining some of the problems, Mr. Volcker said that if the United States is to pay off its liabilities, "it has to ask which countries look forward to running a deficit (in their balance of payments) to finance this (U.S.) surplus. There is no sense in constructing a system which rests on a presumption which no one is willing to support."

The basic message since Ang. 15, he said, is that the "U.S. posikey role in recent EEC trade performance. Stagnating home tion has eroded and we have to find a way to strengthen it. Some progress has been made, The Dec. 18 agreement on fixing

"But," he asked, "who is willing

U.K. Expects Imports To Exceed Export Rise

LONDON, March 28 (AP-DJ).

The British Tressury said today that it expects imports to rise by about 91/2 percent this year while exports will rise by only about 4 to 41/2 percent. The Treasury said that therefore the current account is not expected to be as large this year as the £952 million of 1971. Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber had forecast a deterioration in the current-account surplus when he presented his 1972-73 budget last week but he did not assign specific percentage figures to imports and exports.

ZURICH, March 28 (AP-DJ). -More and more U.S. industrial companies are opening banks in Switzerland.

In the last few years, Dow Chemical, Firestone Tire & Rubber and several other industrial concerns have started the diversification. Largely serving multinational companies like their owners, the new hanks are enjoying a robust growth.

Through contacts of Dow Banking, the parent chemical concern was able to raise $110 million in Eurodollar credits, syndicating the deal by itself. EEC Candidates Accept Increase In Farm Prices

BRUSSELS, March 28 (Reuters)—Britain and its fellow Common Market candidates today formally accepted the community farm price and reform package adopted by agriculture ministers at a 10-hour marathon meeting that ended here last Friday.

Informed sources said that at a meeting at deputy ambassador level, Britain, Ireland, Denniark and Norway told the Six they agreed with the package, under which farm prices will go up by an average of 6.5 percent in 1872-1973.

Only Ireland gave unqualified support for the increases, the sources said. Britain said that it went along with the increases although it considered them too high. Britain told the Six it would also have liked to see a better

U.S. Auditor Hits $7-Million Charge By Litton to Navy

WASHINGTON, March 28 (NYT).-Litton Industries charged about $7 million to Navy shipbuilding contracts when the costs should have been applied to commercial projects at the same shipyard, government auditors told a congressional inquiry yesterday.

The Litton yard in question is at Pascagoula, Miss.

Litton takes the position that there were no inequities in its cost procedures, saying its bids for the contracts were premised those procedures and accept ed by the Pentagon.

However, when Sen. William Proxmire, D, Wis., asked a government expert if the $7 million charge was not "plainly dis-honest," the witness quoted a Pentagon auditing agency as terming the action "improper."

change in general, it was a day when prices showed some firmness in the morning. But most gains withered by the close. The Dow Jonea industrial average slipped 2.71 to 937.01. First National Stores, a blg loser among food chains, fell 31 8 to 29. Winn-Dixie dropped 1 to 52. Fractional declines appeared in Penn Fruit, Acme Markets and Great Atlantic & Pacific Fisher Foods slumped 1 1.4 to 21. Investors have shied away from most food-related stocks ever since last weekend when President Nixon suggested that any new restraints would be aimed at the "middlemen" rather than farmers.

Wholesalers Hit This selling pressure extended to the ranks of wholesale grocers, or companies that supply the supermarkets. Scot Lad Foods gave up 1 5/8 to 29 3 4. while Super Valu Stores dropped 1/2 to 29 1/2. A mixed pattern showed up in the meatpackers. Swift dipped

1/8 to 33 and Oscar Mayer added 1/4 at 29 1/4.

In glamour stocks, Bausch & Lomb fell 1 1/4 to 115. Corning Glass was off 2 at 219 1.2, Levitz Furniture feli 1 to 146 1.2, Disney rose 1 to 160 1/2 and IBM eased

The trading pace, at 15.38 million shares, picked up from yesterday's turnover of only 12.18 million shares, the lowest daily volume so far this year.

Once again, it was a session that saw most individuals and institutions reluctant to commit funds, despite numerous company forecasts for improved profits in 1972.

assortment of blg international oils. Showing declines were Texaco, off 5-8 to 30 3.8. Standard Oil of New Jersey, off 3.4 to 70, and Royal Dutch Petroleum, down 1/8 to 35 1/4.

These giants, several of which have posted 1972 lows this week, continue to suffer from the lag effect of an agreement in principle announced earlier in March. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has reached agreement with major oll companies for a 20 percent slice of their operations. Moody's Stock Survey pointed out that this development "highlights once again the problems encountered in politically difficult areas."

Kerr-McGee, however, rose 1 3/8 to 51. Much of the development work of this company is concentrated in Texas and offshore Louisiana.

Amex Index Up The American Stock Exchange index closed at 27.82, up .01. Austral Oil, the most active issue, rose 1 5 8 to 31 5 8. Teleprompter gained 5'8 to 30 3.8. Williamhouse Regency in-creased 1/4 to 19 1/2. A block of 60,000 shares traded at 19 3/8. National General new warrants

Fed Unifies Reserve Rule

WASHINGTON, March 28 NYT: The Federal Reserve Board announced yesterday two major proposals affecting the nation's banking system. The first would significantly alter the present system of calculating reserve requirements, to make them in the future entirely dependent on a bank's size rather than its geographical location The net effect of the proposed new scale would be a reduction of present required reserves by about $2.9 billion. The second change would require all banks to make payment the same day for checks drawn on them and presented to them -the practice already followed by most banks. This would cut the "float" of uncollected checks by ebout $2 billion, and thus would reduce total bank reserves ov that amount, The two changes are not directly related and are aimed at dealing with separate problems. They were proposed to take effect simultaneously because of the roughly offsetting effects on bank reserves, which avoid complications for monetary policy that could arise from the adoption of either proposal separately. The announcement said "the proposals are intended to be neutral with respect to monetary policy." The earliest date for actual adoption of the proposals would be about mid-June.

The annual report of the Banqua de France's operations for the fiscal year 1971 has just been presented by its Governor to the President of the French Republic.

Important developments can be attributed to the evolution of the inter-national monetary crisis. After having covered the reactions of the major countries — including France — in the face of the movement of capital funds, the report shows that purely conjunctarial factors — namely, the modified payment terms — explain essentially the surplus into halance of payments and the increase of France's exchange reserves. It also analyzes the problems involved by monatury cooperation both on a worldwide scale and between the Common Market countries.

The monotory policy of France is also the subject of an extensive study. More flexible rules adopted by the Enaque de France to cooked the liquidity of banks are anniyzed in detail. Compulsory reservos, calculated on distributed credits, have been set up. The interveblions of the Banque de France on the monetary murkel have become the exsential means for the refinancing of banks. The consequences of the Banque de France's reform on the choice of enpporting banks for refinancing, no well on on the question of liquidity and the conduct of the bunks, are fully set forth.

The cost of money has been moderately reduced. The decrease continued during the first manths of 1872 in line with a similar trend abroad. Of course, the requirements of the internal economic situation have been taken into account. The current couses of anxisty of the monotary authorities are: the slowing down of expansion in certain sectors. the structural culties on the employment market and the continuing rise — although at a slightly reduced rate - of prices and costs. It is thus essential to nsurn in 1972 the dovelopment of the country's activities and to fight milation. The monetory policy should help to estain these abjectives.

The report, in conclusion, points out the main questions which chould he selved on an international scale between the members of the Monolary Fund. It also sets forth the problems that heve arises within the European nunity and the solutions which could be adopted.

INFLATION-6% We can help you now by doubling your income! Mexican banks guarantee 9% 10% and more on short term contracts. Gov't supervision has assured a 40 year record without any depositor losing principal or interest. Decades of hard currency, free exchange and soberfiscal policy make Mexico a haven for investors troubled by rising inflation.

Brazil's astonishing economic strength. You can participate in it through Manufacturers Hanover and its new investment bank affiliate in São Paulo.

Over the past three years, Brazil's economy has grown 27%.

Manufacturers Hanover, with its representative office in São Paulo, has helped—acting as lead bank in arranging loans for government agencies totalling over $225 million.

For projects like subways in Rio de Janeiro and São Paulo ($39,000,000). Railroad networks such as Rede Ferroviaria Federal and Ferroviaria Paulista ($64,000,000). And an international airport for Rio ($99,000,000).

To further broaden its lending capacity in Brazil,
Manufacturers Hanover recently became a partner in Banco de Investimento Andrade Arnaud S.A., an investment bank associated with one of Brazil's fastest growing financial groups, the Andrade Arnaud Group.

Through Banco de Investimento we extend our services to private corporations which maintain branches and subsidiaries throughout Brazil...function as an active source of working capital... and act as underwriter in the local market, providing venture capital for new as well as established companies.

In Brazil's fast-moving economy, you need an international bank that can move fast for you — with financial strength and facilities.

Manufacturers Hanover.

South brought home a difficult game on the diagramed deal. He opened the hand in third seat with one club; and West ventured an overcall of one space. North bid two hearts and raised his partner's two no-trump rebid to game. This final bid was on the optimistic side, but North was demonstrating a well-justified confidence in his partner's dummy-play skill.

As Sonth did not want East to gain the lead, he allowed West's club jack to win the first trick. A club was continued to dummy's ace, and the spade ten was ducked around to the jack with West. A third club was taken by the king in the closed hand, and declarer took a heart finesse. He continued hearts, and after all but one of the hearts had been cashed the position

South led the last heart from dummy and threw his losing club. West was in trouble. If he had made the obvious play of discarding a diamond Sonth would have led diamonds, forc-ing a lead away from the spade king eventually.

A spade discard would have allowed South to lead to the ace and drop the king, so West tried a third route. He discarded his club winner, but South had an answer to that play too. Hе played the spade ace followed by the queen, and the dismond king South his crucial ninth

WITHOUT STOPPING

An autobiography by Paul Bowles. 379 pp. Illustrated Putnam. $7.95.

Reviewed by Anatole Broyard

Paul Bowles used to be put out in the backyard of his family's brownstone to "play" for an hour. The yard was shut in by a very high wooden fence, which blocked out the view of everything but the house with its nine windows looking out at him like nine eyes. If he stood still and watched the clock that was always placed in the window so he would know when the hour was np, he would hear taps on one of the glasses and see his mother making gestures exhorting him to move around and play. If he began to gallop around the yard, his father would call from another window: "Calm down, young man!"

Young Paul was a favorite topic of the Bowles family and its friends. One visitor remarked ominously that "He has a very old coul, almost too old." His paternal grandmother held that "It's not natural for a child of his age to have such thick lips." By the time he was 5 years old, Paul had yet to speak to another child and was dutifully chewing his food 40 times before swallowing it in accordance with the theory of a Dr. Fletcher.

The quality of Paul Bowles's family life undoubtedly had something to do with the passion for travel that was to obsess him for the next 50 years. He ran away for the first time when he was 18, landing in Paris with less than $50 and no hope of money from home. Odd jobs and friends kept him alive while he explored France, which he loved, and Ger-many, which he didn't. When he returned to America, he began to study music with Aaron Copland, who was to be his mentor for many years.

Soon he was off to Paris again. lunching with Ezra Pound and visiting Gertrude Stein, who had just astonished a number of her acquaintances with identical notes stating that henceforth she would do without his or her friendship. He met Jean Cocteau, who was such a dramatic raconteur that he even crawled across the floor in imitation of a bear and impersonated the ushers at the new Paris Paramount Theater. On a trip to Hannover he met Kurt Schwitters, who was working on his famous Merzban construction. With Schwitters and his son, Bowles went to the city dump and foraged among the garbage, ashes and junk for material for the Merzhau:

On his first trip to Morocco, Bowles found that it had what he defined as magic: "A secret con-nection between the world of nature and the consciousness of He found that "each Moroccan gave the impression of playing a part in a huge drama," and he never tired of watching their "formalized grimaces denoting exasperation, incredulity, in-dignation and a whole gamnt of subtler states of mind." Tangier was a "a dream city . . . covered streets like corridors . . . hidden Times book critic.

WHEN he was a very small boy, terraces high above the streets streets consisting only of steps. dark impasses . . small square that . . looked like ballet se designed in false perspective

At about this period, when he was 21, Bowles began to move from place to place, each me obscure than the last. Wherew he went, he managed to find a out-of-tune plane, an organ t harmonium on which he continu ed to write music. After movie to South America, where to caught as usual, the most prealent of the local diseases, t returned again to America. Peni began to ask him to compo-scores for important shows, an after this, he was forever elti-going somewhere in North Affi to work in solitude on a score returning from somewhere to one. When his own music a played he was often thousands; miles away, and there is at much of it that he has new heard performed. In 1938, Mr. Bowles marry

Jane Aner, who later wrote a ph "In the Summerhouse," as we as a novel, "Two Serious Ladies Their marriage was either model of adaptability or one name only, since each was fores leaving the other because of whim or compulsion to be some where else. The ambiguous nata of their relationship is ner clarified, owing to Bowles's bei that, in an autobiography, or ought to 'reserve judgment ar give a minimum importance personal attitudes."

Somehow during his consta traveling and composing. Bowl managed to write two volumes: short stories, four novels, to books of travel essays and to volumes of verse, as well as tran lating four North African novel Perhaps because his own life w so full, his novels seem peculiar empty and lifeless. Both his fa novel and a number of his stori suffer from a gratuitous sad masochistic sexuality that seen oddly removed from the cool ar detached tone of "Without Stop ping." Bowles is at his best in writin about places, and there is enoug of this to make his autobiograph extremely good reading. He ca evoke a place with a few sir strokes and leave us with a hami ing feeling that our own traves is Europe or Mexico are no mor adventurous than spinning a rac of postcards outside a tobac shop. Now it is probably too le to go to the places he describ so well, for, as he says: "Then day came when I realized with shock that not only did the wor have more people in it than but also that the hotels were k good, travel less comfortable, a places in general much less bes tiful" Now, when more and mo people can afford to travel, the is less and less to see.

Napoles Is Still King Of Welters

Stops Charles In 7th Round

WEMBLEY, England, March 28. Jose Napoles retained his world celterweight boxing title tonight y knocking out. British chal-enger Ralph Charles in the eventh round."

The end came suddenly after n even fight as Napoles blasted.

Tharles with a flurry of blows
allowed by a right cross.

It put Charles on his back and he was counted out after 2 ninutes 52 seconds of the eventh. The champion, 22, born in Cube at now living in Mexico, and harles started slowly, with both ighters using lefting johs. Napoles charged in in the secnd, but Charles kept him away vith flicking left hands. Napoles vas warned by British referee

Stalking forward continuously. vapoles took the third round with some digging body blows and a joining left hook to the 3riton's jaw.

Charles, probably in his best orm in his 43-fight career, outpunched Napoles in the fourth as he Cuban missed with wild

Charles connected with severa good combinations and the crowd, hoping for an upset, cheered

In a close fifth round, Charles rept out of trouble with skillful lefensive work and Napoles appeared to be slowing down. The red-baired Englishman connected with a good right to the jaw in the sixth and followed it up with a cracking left. Napoles lost his composite and it was Charles's best round.

The seventh round started much the same as the sixth, but suddenly Napoles came on again and hounded Charles from one side of the ring to the other.

The champion set up the Briton with some punishing blows to the body and as Charles's guard dropped, Napoles let fly with tha knockout punches.

Between the sixth and seventh rounds, British Boxing Board of Control medical officer Dr. Adrian Whiteson "confiscated" a small metal box from Napoles's corner. Napoles's manager, Carlos Conde, said, Tonly had smalling salts in the tin and you can use them in boxing anywhere in world. If I had known they would not allow me to use them I would not have gone through with the right.".

Dr. Whiteson said the box contained "an aromatic ammonia which is used extensively in the United States but is not allowed in Britain."

Conde argued with the medicai official when he took away the box and was told, "Sit down and behave yourself. Stimulants are not allowed."

After the fight, Conde said that Sandro Lopopolo of Italy is next in line to face Napoles. He said Napoles will defend against Lopopolo "in Monte Carlo in the very near future." It is believed the fight will be held in June.

Lopopolo, 32, was a former holder of the world junior-welterweight title. He is unrated by the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association.

"The bout went as expected, although Charles surprised me because I didn't know he was so cagey." Napoles said. "I did not use combinations until the seventh when I opened up because you don't fight that way against these cagey boxers." Charles said. "I never saw, or felt, the final punch. He badn't hurt me at all, but I knew nothing about that last one." Napoles, a pro for 14 years, has now had 72 fights with only five defeats. He has won 49 of them inside the distance. It was Charles's third defeat in 43 fights.

In another fight oo the card, Keo Buchanan of Scotland, World Boxing Association lightweight champion, outpointed Al Ford of Canada in a ten-round non-title bout. Buchanan started slowly but outclassed his opponent in the final two rounds.

Richey Advances In South Africa; Santana Wins

JOHANNESBURG, March 28 (Reuters) — Top-seeded Cliff Richey met an unexpectedly strong challenge from Transvasi's Derek Schroeder in winning his second-round match, 6-2, 6-2, 7-6, in the South African Open ten-

British and Dutch Have Company in Cup Soccer

By Brian Glanville which had kept him so long out

LONDON, March 28 (IHT) .-Results in the three European soccer competitions must revise the prevailing belief that British and Dutch soccer dominate the Continent. Though Ajax, holder of the European Cup, has reached the semifinals, though Glasgow's Celtic and Rangers remain in the European and the Cup Winners' Cup respectively, and Spurs and Wolves in the Fairs Cup, such teams as Arsenal, Cheisea and Leeds United hava fallen in their competitions. Man-chester United is still the only English team ever to have won the European Cop, since it hegan in 1955-56. As for Rotterdam's Fevenoord. their 4-1 thrashing by Benfica in Lisbon-what a splendid season Jimmy Hagan and his team are having-robs it of the pos-sibility of playing a final on its own ground, for Rotterdam has been chosen as the venue.

It is quite clear, as one has remarked, that Feyenoord without the Swedish center-forward Ove Kindvall isn't Peyenoord; the dog doesn't bite. As for Arsenal, eliminated by Ajax, it may coldly console itself that it is a different team when its £220,000 ($574,000) inside-forward Alan Ball is eligible to play. Not, alas, as different as all that, as one saw four days before its defeat by Ajax, when it struggled to a lucky away victory against the Second Division's Orient in the English Cup.

Perhaps the greatest stricture on Arsenal, in its home defeat by Ajax, was an implicit one; it lay in the performance of its young Scottish outside-right, Peter Marinello. Two seasons ago, the little, long-haired Marinello was signed for the then vast fee of £100,000 from Edinburgh's Hibernian. He then failed in the first team, and was drooped into the reserves. Arsenal explaining unconvincingly that it had bought him only as a long-term prospect. Last season, it plodded dully but efficiently to the Cup and League double, with Marinello in the shadows. Lack of players-injured and suspended-forced it to throw him in for the vital return match with Ajax. He began by missing a glorious chance in the first minute. The rust en-gendered by all those reserve games could have accounted for

But then the slight, brave, clever little fellow started dancing around the Dutch defenders with marvellous skill, so that one be-gan to wonder if it was really this sheer enterprise and skill

Kentucky Coach Rupp, Forced To Retire, May Enter Politics must retire at the end of tha

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 28 (AP).—Adolph Rnpp's basketball coaching career at Kentucky ended last night. He may now try to become a winner in politics.

Rupp, who won more games than any other college coach, had wanted to remain although he has passed the required retirement age of 70, But Kentucky's athletic board announced last night that Rupp's retirement is mandatory. Rupp was not present at the an-After its unanimous vote to require Rupp to retire July 1, the board named a five-member com-mittee to choose a successor. Although assistant coach Joe B. Hall reportedly had been promised the job when Rupp retired, Kentucky University president Otis Singletary insisted that "no commitment has been given to anyone at any tima about the head coaching job."

Rupp, when informed of the board's decision, said he wanted to "sit quietly and think about it" before announcing his plans. "Let's not talk about it," Rupp said when told by a reporter of the board's decision at a Tipoff Club banquet in Tuscaloosa, Ala. "Let's talk about something pleas-

Asked about whether he plans to go into politics, as has been reported, Rupp replied: "I want to sit quietly and think about it." Earlier this week, Rupp said that if he were not allowed to continne coaching he would seek the Democratic nomination for Congress from Kentucky's 6th District. He has two days to file for that office. Rupp coached Kentucky teams

Invidious Incentives This is why baseball law now forbids "incentive" bonuses. Not that the rule was put in to protect the manager's job, but the Barrett case is an example of complications that can arise when a player is paid on a slid-ing scale based on that season's performance.

NEW YORK, March 28 (NYT).-Tracey Souter Barrett, alias Richard Oliver Barrett, alias Dick Oliver, also known as Kewpie Barrett, was a cheerful and crafty gentleman out of Montoursville, Pa., where Loyal-sock Creek joins the West Branch of the Susquehanna near Williamsport. Though he looked like a bartender, Dick Barrett threw baseballs for a living more than 20 years, and he had an armament of pitches as varied and confusing as his

Prom time to time in a fairly blameless life, his pink torso was owned by the Philadelphia Athletics, the Boston Braves, the Cincinnati Reds, the Chicago Cubs and the Philadelphia Phil-lies but when he left those clubs there was no public clamor to retire his uniform number and preserve his sweaty flannels under glass. His turi was the Pacific Coast League, where he owned the hitters outright. Most pitchers go through life without ever winning 20 games in a season. In his eight summers with Seattle, Barrett finished below that figure only once, and then be won 18. Ona year he even signed a contract calling for a series of bonuses to begin with his 20th victory. What most pitchers despair of achieving, Dick Barrett guar-anteed in writing. Perhaps this was a mistake; maybe tha financial implications of every hit he allowed and every error committed behind him weighed on his mind. At any rate, in contrast to his won-and-lost record of 24-5 just one year earlier, he was 18-12 when the sun rose oo the last day of the bonus season.

to pay so many dollars for each victory, as individuals unfamiliar with the rules have suggested. Vide would want to pitch every third day and never mind what Catfish Hunter or Denny McLain of Blue Moon Odom might mean to the team. Any time Dick Williams took Blue out of a close game for a pinchbatter, the manager would ba put away as Finley's fink, protecting his own job by saving le boss money. One contract like that could tear apart the team that last year breezed home 16 games on top of the American League West. Finley doesn't need that; he can louse up his own team without help, as the recent dismissal of Tommy Davis demonstrates. Only after Davis introduced Robert Gerst, an attorney, to Vida Blue and Gerst became Blue's agent, only then to as "the notary." "However," Gerst said, "after contracts came up." Incentive bonuses are banned did the Athletics discover that the two-time batting champion of the National League who hit 324 last year could no longer "do the job defensively" at first

Gerst, who played college baseball at Southern California, has represented Jerry West, the basketball player, for years and also acted for Tommy Davis. In statements to the press. Finley misses few opportunitles to asperse Gerst, whom he refers for many reasons. The first baseball commissioner, Kenesaw

M. Landis, once voided a contract that promised the player a bonus "if he hustled." To Judge Landis, this meant the man's base pay was for not hustling. On the other hand, there is nothing in the rules against bonuses for services already delivered. There is nothing to prevent an owner's tearing up a contract in mid-season and paying a man what he has earned.

When it became obvious last year that Blue was grossly un-derpaid at slightly more than the major-league minimum, Pinley didn't raise his $14,750 wage He gave him a Cadillac that Vida didn't want and offered him $2,000 to adopt True as a middle name, which Vida furiously rejected. Possibly the reason Charley wouldn't increase last year's pay was so he could take bows this year for offering a raise of more than 300 percent.

Finley keeps pointing out that a player's salary may be cut no more than 20 percent; if he paid Blue, say, $75,000 and the pitcher had a poor season. Charley would still be stuck for $60,000 in 1973. So all right, Gerst suggested how about a retroactive bonus for last year's performance? That way Vida could get what he deserved and Finley could hold the 1972 salary line at $50,000. Charley said no.

Can Blind Justice Read?

When it comes to having it both ways in an argument, no-body matches the baseball Establishment. In defense of its reserve system, baseball has boasted for years that that player can rely on being rewarded this year for last year's performance. Now we hear, from such intellectuals as tha Detroit manager, Billy Martin, that Blue isn't entitled to a salary like those of other top pitchers because "there's no guarantee he'll have another 24-8 year." Just about the time the Supreme Court was hearing arguments in Curt Flood's attack on the reserve system, the Yankees' Mike Burke was saying in the papers that he would buy Blue's contract for $1 million and pay him $75,000 this

Burke's remarks are not part of the court record. Yet it's just possible that one or nine of the justices may have read the papers and mused, "Here's an employee making $14,750 who isn't free to take gootber job in his business at $75,000."

A's McLain Continues His Unimpressive Pitching

Denny McLain's romance with the Oakland A's continued to be a rocky one vesterday as the former Cy Young Award winner was roughed up again in a baseball spring training game. McLain, acquired from the Texas Rangers earlier this year, was tagged with the loss as the Cleveland Indians beat Oakland. 3-2, on Eddie Leon's run-scoring single in the seventh inning.

In Oakland's spring training opener two weeks ago, McLain was tagged for 10 mms in three innings. He was bombed again in another outing last week. McLain started yesterday's game and went seven innings, giving up the game-winning single to

Leon after a hit by Lou Camilli and a sacrifice. The Pittsburgh Pirates continued to tune up for their defense of their world championship, heating Kansas City, 8-7, as Al Oliver slugged a three-run homer

the great moments occurred at a state banquet when the President surprised the television andience by eating his dinner with chopsticks.

The President does not want the Russian leaders to feel that he has slighted them. He wants to assure them or equal banqueting surprise time on television. For this reason he has been practicing hard on the samovar for the past month.

His plan, which Prof. K'ssinger put to the Russians, was to preside at a big samovar during a great banquet in the Kremlin and produce the tea for the eotire assemblage.

The President has, in fact, become so proficient on the samover that among the press statements already composed for release during his May visit to Moscow is one that hegins: "President Nixon last night hecame the first American president to make tea from a samovar in the Kremlin . . ."

That press release will prohably have to be scrapped. The Russlans, although insisting that they are willing to go to great lengths to make the trlp a success, say they have polled the members of the Central Committee and found that 82 perceot want coffee instead of tea after dinner.

They say it would be a gross provocation for the President to

Stokes Takes TV Job

NEW YORK, March 28 (AP)-The National Broadcasting Co. said yesterday that former Cleveland Mayor Carl B. Stokes has signed a contract to become cosochorman on the 6 p.m. local TV news.

By Russell Baker WASHINGTON-Prof. Kis- Ignore the preference of the majorlty and concentrate his attention upon the out-of-step few who want tea. If the President wants to make the coffee, they have told Prof. Kissinger, they will not object.

Prof. Kissinger has inquired whether the coffee could be made in a samovar. The Soviet Central Banqueting Collective has reolied that it takes years to learn to make a good cup of coffee in a samovar. It would be more practical, the White House has been advised, for the President to leave the banqueting hall, go into the kitchen and make the coffee in five 10-gallon vots similar to these used in American drugstores. Excellent TV camera positions can be arranged by the vats to provide good angles of the Fres-ident turning knobs and releasing steaming coffee.

Prof. Kissinger has told the Soviet leaders that this is not what the President had in mind. He has explained that the Presideat wants to show that he is sufficiently interested in Russian culture to master some aspect of The coffee vat is purely American, he protested.

The Kremlin said that in that case maybe the President would like to tend bar during the cocktail hour. They say the cocktail hour is an old Russian cultural tradition invented soon after the discovery of vodka. The President could master it very rapidly, they said, with just a few hours of practice on some vodka and dry vermouth.

Naturally, Prof. Kissinger sald no. but then Leonid Brezhnev, the head Communist, personally intervened in the samovar issue. If the President wants to do something on television to illustrate his mastery of some phase of Russian culture, Brezhnev has suggested to Prof. Kissinger, he might learn to dance while in the deep-knee-bend position. Brezhnev says this would make for a smashing TV finale to a Kremlin state banquet. Or, he has suggested, the President might like to wrestle a bear. It is not known what President Nixon has decided, but over the weekend bear tracks were seen in the White House Red Room,

The Biggest Pollution Problem—Abandoned Cars

About 2.6 million cars were recycled with the shredders last year, 700,000 more than in 1970. The number of machines in use has jumped by 50 percent since 1968, to 108,

Shredders

The nation is heginning to gain ground in efforts to deal with discarded autos, at least in urban areas, for several reasons. Among them is the growing use of metal shredders which can reduce abandoned cars to metals of almost the same quality as the original materials. The hydraulic compressor processors, still used by the majority of scrap processes, "squeeze B lot of junk" in with the cars and the result is "a low grade of steel when you melt it down," said Israel Proler of Houston, who with his three brothers developed the first car shredder

In the shredding process, tires, radiators, seats and fuel tanks are first removed. After the car is chopped up, magnets, blowers and filtering techniques remove the paint, glass and contaminants and turn the metals back into almost the original quality.

Other factors that are contributing to a resolution of the abandoned car problem include the recent upswing in scrap metal prices, stronger export demand due in part to devalua-tion of the dollar, and successful removal programs in some cities and states. But, in isolated rural areas, the heaps of rusting, forgotten cars are continuing to climb.

Mr. Proler, one of the largest reclaimers of eutomobiles in the United States (his company shredded more than a million cars last year! watched as his system digested a rusted 1964

"We're starting to catch up with the backlog. It will take time, but if we have s stabilized market like it is right now, I think we can catch up within three or four years."

A look at junked-car statistics-and the roadsides of America, where ugly steel carcasses scar the scenery from New York to California-raises skepticism about whether any number of recycling plants can keep up with the waste of affluent

America. In Philadelphia, the number of cars abandoned on city streets jumped from 10,000 in 1965 to 21,700 last year. In New York, 82,000 cars were abandoned illegally in 1971, up from the 30,000 that were towed Bway in 1968. In San Francisco, Thomas Zeragosa, the police department traffic director, said: "We're taking off 125 to 150 abandoned cars B week, but people are dropping them faster than we can pick them up."

Statistics

Nobody knows exactly bow many cars are decaying in American junkyards or slong U.S. highways. Estimates range from 14 million to as many as 20 million. Each year 6 million to 7 million additional cars are discarded, and steel scrappers must dispose of this many just to stay even.

The authorities cite a number of reasons for the modernday phenomenon of walking away from an automobile, among them: the gint of used cars that makes it possible to buy B runnable jalopy for $50 and then throw it away when something goes wrong; the reluctance of car dealers to take some older cars as trade-ins, and increasingly tight vehicle inspections in some states.

"Ahandoned cars are the biggest pollution problem this country has," said police inspector Pat O'Connell in Pittsburgh, where 3,000 to 5,000 cars are abandoned annually.

Despite the problems, some cities and states are beginning to make progress. New York has sharply accelerated the recovery of abandoned cars in the last two years under a system that puts the task under jurisdiction of the sanitation depart-

In Baltimore, city officials say that they have eliminated most worthless cars in the city under a state bounty system which pays junk dealers and processors $5 each to destroy old cars and a companion program to sell cars found abandoned in the city to a scrap-shredding concern. A comparable city-sponsored collection system which channels shandoued cars to a shredder is cited by Chicago officials as making dramatic progress in cleaning up that city. "We don't worry about abandoned cars asymore," said James P. Arnold, a city official, who works on the program.

In California, the state legislature recently passed a law under which all auto owners in the state next year will pay an extra $1 registration fee to finance a $14.4 million, one-time cleanup of sbandoned cars, for disposal in shredding machines.

His use of abstract concepts, rather than words, enabled him to break free from methods of thought that prevented others from seeing the limitations of concepts rooted in direct human experience. As described by his sister, Maja. the young Einstein used to lose confrol of himself when enraged, turning yellow in the face except for the tip of his nose, which turned white. On one occasion, at the age of five, he became so furious at his violin teacher that he threw a chair at her; she fled in terror. His sister also wrote that while Kinstein was at school in Munich in the 1890s, his teacher reported that "nothing good" would come of the lad. By the time he was 26, however, Einstein—turned down as a physics teacher in Switzerland because he was "unqualified"-had already published his first papers on the theory of relativity and was laying the foundation of his quantum theory.

Cheered by some 700 flowerbearing disciples, Satgura Maha-raj Ji, a 14-year-old Indian who claims to have "perfect know-ledge," arrived in New York Monday to preach in America as "the humble servant of God." The chubby youth, wearing a Nehru suit, was accompanied by his mother, Shri Mata Ji, whom he calls "the holiest and highest mother of creation." The guru, who visited the U.S. last year, said his first trip was "like a gardener walking into a garden without flowers, but now I come and there are many flowers." A spokesman said the guru has ten million followers throughout the world, who proclaim him "the perfect master, savior of mankind, lord of the universe of this
